I entered the entertainment business to be a part of storytelling. Whether it be through the written word, music, or cave wall paintings, the human race has always passed down lessons learned through the personification of ideals. It is my aspiration to made part of such examples. When life is hard, as it often is, sometimes the only men and women to look to for advice are characters written who overcome trials similar to our own. For a brief moment the obstacles of our personal lives fade from thought, as we see them conquered by others. There are few instances where conclusions in this life are perfect, and resolutions close with hope restored; in film, however, we have this opportunity.
